The destination of Detective William J. Burns, who left Saturday afternoon at 5:10 o'clock over the Louisville and Nashville railroad, is being kept a secret by Burns' attachés in Atlanta.

Although it was rumored that the detective was en route to Cincinnati, where he goes to interview Dewey Hewell, Burns' officials in Atlanta would neither deny nor verify the report Sunday afternoon. They remained reticent regarding their chief's journey.

It is said, however, that he will return soon, probably tomorrow.
